BECK

Rita Levitiss Beck, 99, passed June 23 at Abington Hospital-Lansdale Hospice (PA). Rita was born on December 1, 1918 in Brooklyn NY to Anne (Voloshin) and Samuel Levitiss. She was predeceased by her parents; her son, Andrew Preston Beck Ph.D.; her husband, Gustav Julius Beck, MD and her brother Maurice Weiner. She is survived by son and daughter in law Edward and Esther Beck; grandchildren, Avi (Anat) Beck and Rishona (Scott) Myers and Samantha (Rob) Masabny and five great grandchildren, Elle, Amanda, Michael, Sarah and Andi. Rita Beck, educator, bacteriologist and immunological researcher, graduated from New York University in 1938. She did post graduate training and research in microbiology in the New York University College of Medicine where she was Senior Bacteriologist and Serologist. It was there she laid the groundwork for the immunologic method of detecting syphilis in the spinal fluid. She also perfected tests to detect and differentiate different rheumatological diseases. After her marriage and birth of her two sons, participated in many continuing education courses from the Liberal Arts Extension Program of New York University and then went on to take graduate courses at Monclair State University where she developed pioneering sex education courses for adults which she offered through the Rutgers University Extension Program. As a member of the Jewish Community Center on the Palisades in Tenafly, NJ, she endowed the Andrew P. Beck Memorial Fund For Environmental Education. She was a patron of the New York University College of Medicine, a Trustee for the New Jersey Film Institute and Bergen County Heart Association. She was a active volunteer in the League of Women Voters, a Founding Member of Temple Sinai of Tenafly, NJ and the New Jersey Association on Adult Education. In 1996 She and her husband moved to Foulkeways in Gwynedd PA, a continuing care facility where she continued her volunteer activities. Rita and members of the Beck family request that in lieu of flowers, contributions be made to a fund that the family has established. It is the Israel Speakers Education Fund of the Jewish Community Relations Council of The Jewish Community Foundation of Central Pennsylvania. Details to contribute are at: www.pajewishendowment.org/israeli-speakers-educational-endowment or a charity of your choice. Funeral service was held at the chapel at King Solomon Memorial Cemetery in Clifton New Jersey on June 26, 2018.

DEATH NOTICES

BERMAN

Norman A. Berman, 88, of Philadelphia, died July 5 surrounded by family in his home in Bala Cynwyd. He was the beloved husband of Karen Kaskey, father of Samantha and Amanda, and grandfather of Gabriel and Duke the golden retriever; also survived by his brother Larry S. Berman and his loving nieces and nephew. He endeared himself to his many friends and family with his joie de vivre, his sparkle, and his endless warmth. Norman's parents, Albert Berman and Libby Altman Berman, descended from European Jews who immigrated to the United States in the early 1900s, settling in the Philadelphia area, to provide better lives for their families. His father, Al, was born on a ship en route to America, and his mother was the only child of businessman Charles Altman, known fondly during and after the Depression as the "Mayor of South Street". Norman attended local elementary schools, graduating from Central High School in 1946 and from Temple University in 1950 with a business degree. Having worked for the family business, the preeminent "Al Berman" clothiers on Fifth and South, since his teenage years, Norman sought to pursue an avid interest in finance and the stock market in the early 1960's by becoming a Securities Broker at Robinson and Company. His career morphed into "deal-making" and spanned everything form mergers and acquisitions, real estate investment, and casino development in Atlantic City during its renaissance. His specialty was in structuring deals, and his charming personality made him the best "deal closer" his peers had ever seen. Quite the man-about-town, Norman remained single until he met the love of his life, attorney Karen. After half a century, Norman finally married, had a family, and devoted himself to the well-being and happiness of Karen, and daughters, Samantha and Amanda, who also became lawyers. His unconditional love, total support of, and pride in his family--despite being surrounded by three women attorneys--was perhaps his most endearing quality. Duke was his best friend and collaborator, but having grandson Gabriel in his last year of life was Norman's greatest joy. Graveside funeral services were held at West Laurel Hill Cemetery, 225 Belmont Ave., Bala Cynwyd, PA 19004 on Sunday, July 8 at noon. Relatives and friends were invited to join the family for shiva at Norman and Karen's home following the service. Contributions may be made in Norman's honor to the Golden Slipper Club and Charities.

KRUPNICK

Susan Ellen Krupnick (Nissenbaum) was born on March 26, 1950 in Penn Wynne, PA. Susie lived a charmed childhood, traveling the world with her parents, Charlotte and Nate Nissenbaum, and her brother, Ronald "Boots" Nissenbaum. She met lifelong friends at Penn Valley Elementary, Welsh Valley Jr. High and Harriton High School. Susie then attended American University, where she studied English literature and immersed herself in the hippie lifestyle of the 1960s. She participated in Woodstock, protested against the Vietnam War, and honed her lifelong commitment to healthy eating. In the spring of 1969 she met Steven Krupnick, the man who would become the love of her life, on a park bench in the American University Quad. It was love at first sight and they instantly became inseparable soulmates. Susie graduated from college early so she could marry Steve on January 22, 1971. From that moment on, Steve and Susie spent the next 47 years together, building a life filled with joy. They raised their three children Katy (Friedland), Betsy (Ramage), and David in the Society Hill neighborhood of Philadelphia, taking advantage of all that the city had to offer. Susie began her career as a English teacher and later earned a Masters in Special Education. As a young mom, she taught special ed preschoolers and ran parenting groups, determined to balance a career and motherhood. In 1984, never afraid of change, Susie started a new career path as the co-owner and operator of a punk children's store called Kamikaze Kids. The store was situated in the heart of the counterculture scene of South Street and she loved being part of the creative community surrounding her storefront. Soon Kamikaze Kids became the gold standard for hip children's wear throughout the Philadelphia region, growing to include additional stores in Manayunk, Suburban Square, Newtown Square, and Marlton, NJ. Susie was a "worker bee" to her core, and after 17 years as a store owner, she decided to work with her husband Steve, a local business and property owner, relishing in her ability to take "teammate" to a whole new level. Susie was enthusiastic about everything. Being active made her feel alive and her positive energy and love of life was contagious to everyone who knew her. But despite having a robust work life and a gigantic circle of friends, the leading roles in Susie's story were always played by her family members. A devoted wife and mother, Susie put her family first and never missed a school play, sporting event, or late-night talk. She adored her nine grandchildren and jumped at any opportunity to do a puzzle or craft project with them. Susie considered the beaches of Longport, NJ to be her "happy place" and took great pleasure in hosting her family of 16 throughout the summer. Nothing brought her more pleasure than walking with Steve along the beach, hand in hand. Susie died on Thursday, June 28th after an eight year battle with breast cancer. She is survived by her husband Steve; her brother Boots and his wife, Judy Nissenbaum; her children Katy and Jason Friedland, Betsy and Jake Ramage, David and Davida Krupnick; and her grandchildren Julien, Wyatt, Zoe, Violet, Charlotte, Harrison, Grayson, and Colin. In lieu of flowers, donations can be made in Susie's honor to the Clarke Schools for Hearing and Speech, an organization that she loved for the support it gave her grandsons. www.clarkeschools.org/krupnickfund. Funeral Services were Sunday July 1st at Congregation Rodeph Shalom, 615 N. Broad Street, Phila., PA 19123.

MELNICK

Arnold Melnick, DO, born 1920 in Philadelphia, died July 12, 2018. He was predeceased by the love of his life and best friend, Anita (Slipakoff), his living wife of 63 marvelous years. He is survived by his beloved son, Sandy Dean Melnick, MD, his wonderful daughter-in-law, Nona, and two grandchildren, Rachel Louise Melnick (Ryan Balogh) and Steven Harris (Megan) Melnick, both of whom he loved dearly. Also surviving are his sister, Lila Grossman, and three godsons – Kenneth (Suzie) Shear, Yonathan (Michal) Shear and Daniel Berger. He attended Philadelphia public schools and received AB and MA Degrees from Temple University and DO and MSc degrees from Philadelphia College of Osteopathic Medicine, as well as an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters from Nova Southeastern University. During his 30 years in pediatric practice in Philadelphia, he was chairman of pediatrics at two hospitals and a faculty member at three medical schools. In 1980, Dr. Melnick entered a second career as Founding Dean of the Southeastern College of Osteopathic Medicine in Miami, and through its growth and amalgamation, he became Executive Vice Chancellor and Provost of the Health Professions Division of Nova Southeastern University in Fort Lauderdale. He served as chief operating officer and led in the establishment of five additional health professions schools at the University along the way. Active in numerous professional and related groups, he achieved the presidency of chairmanship of 13 national and regional organizations, and held the honor of Fellow in five professional associations. In addition, he was honored by various professional organizations with 18 Distinguished Service Awards. Most recently, he was inducted by the American Osteopathic Association as one of the first 40 Great Pioneers in Osteopathic Medicine. He was a founder of Congregation Melrose B'nai Israel in Cheltenham and served as its second president. On his retirement from medical education in 1998, he turned to his life-long love of writing and editing; this became his third career, and he continued to be nationally recognized as a distinguished writer and speaker. He was the author of 8 published books and more than 200 published professional publications. In this third career, he also served as columnist for three professional publications, writing about pediatrics and medical communication. He also edited two professional newsletters. While he was proud of his professional and personal achievements, he prided himself most for his great family, for his many "firsts" in his profession, for his reputation for honesty and integrity, and for his intense love for children. Contributions in his memory may be made to a charity of the donor's choice. www.goldsteinsfuneral.com

DEATH NOTICES

ZEBOOKER

After 71 years of marriage, the Zebookers passed away within a week of one another: Janet (Reibstein) at 95, on May 30th; and Eli at 105, on June 6th. The two were inseparable, their marriage a paragon of love and devotion. Eli practiced dentistry in the U.S. Army during WWII and then for nearly five decades in Philadelphia. Janet studied art, worked on Madison Avenue, and started a graphics design agency before devoting her time to raising her family. The Zebookers were pioneers in Society Hill when they moved there from Center City in the 1960s, building one of the few homes designed by "Philadelphia School" architect Romaldo Giurgola. They remained residents of the area until their deaths. Janet and Eli loved reading, playing tennis, golf, and cards, and enjoyed fine dining wherever they went. They traveled frequently and extensively to all corners of the world. Janet took up photography and documented their numerous explorations. An exceptional cook who regularly entertained friends and family, Janet was known to all for her kindness and her witty sense of humor. Over 30 years of retirement, Eli's unyielding curiosity led to his studies and writings of Greek mythology, British history and Shakespeare. His passion was Philadelphia history and Eli acquired an exemplary collection of 18th and 19th century maps, rare books and prints which he donated to The Athenaeum of Philadelphia (Eli P. Zebooker Collection). Eli is among the centenarians profiled in "If I Live to Be 100: The Wisdom of Centenarians" (Rizzoli). Janet and Eli Zebooker will remain an endlessly rewarding source of joy and inspiration to their children, Evan (Jennifer) and Nina (William Ephraim), cherished grandchildren Molly, Max, and James, as well as to their extended families and friends. A Memorial for the couple is being held for family and friends on July 29th, 2018.

Judaism isn't just what we believe, or the prayers we recite or the laws we observe. It's also about the way we live. How we interact with others. The values we practice. The customs and traditions we embrace and pass down, from one generation to the next.
